ceramic brussels opens its doors and reveals the awards granted to galleries and artists of its 3rd edition ceramic brussels, the first international contemporary art fair entirely dedicated to ceramics, officially opened the doors of its third edition to the public on Thursday 22 January.

VIP & Media Preview – Wednesday 21 January

The fair opened with a VIP and media preview (by invitation only), welcoming over 3,000 guests for an exclusive first look at the exhibition. Among them were numerous international delegations (including South Korea, the USA and Spain), a large presence of national and international generalist and specialised media, as well as museum and institutional representatives, curators and collectors from Belgium, across Europe and beyond.

The strong attendance and remarkable dynamism throughout the aisles once again confirm the growing international appeal of ceramic brussels and its key position on the contemporary art scene.

Awards Ceremony – Public Opening Day

The first day of public opening was marked by the official awards ceremony, held at the opening of the fair, during which:

- Two prizes were awarded to galleries (Best solo show and best booth)
- Seven awards were presented as part of the ceramic brussels art prize

Gallery Awards

Since 2025, the fair's advisory board has awarded two prizes to participating galleries in order to recognise the outstanding quality of their stands and support their commitment to presenting their artists.

Each prize includes increased visibility as well as a €2,000 grant awarded to each gallery.

- Best solo show
The best solo show award is granted to SECCI gallery.
for the exhibition of works by Kevin Francis Gray (Noord-Ierland).
- Best Booth
The Best Booth Award is granted to Gallery Judith Andreae
for the presentation of works by Janis Löhner

ceramic brussels Art Prize – Partner Awards

The ceramic brussels art prize aims to highlight the vitality and diversity of contemporary ceramic practices while supporting emerging artists. Each year, the jury of the ceramic brussels Art Prize, together with numerous partner institutions, award a series of prizes among the selected laureates.

- Jury prize

This year, Marie Pic has been awarded the jury prize.
She will benefit from a solo exhibition at ceramic brussels 2027, offering enhanced visibility for their work.

- Embassy of France in Belgium (BE)

Ninon Hivert receives the Embassy of France in Belgium Award and will benefit from the publication of a monograph dedicated to their work, produced in partnership with Les Éditions des Ateliers d'Art de France.

- Les Ateliers dans la Forêt (FR)
