ABOUT THE CID

The CID – centre for innovation and design at Grand-Hornu aims to promote contemporary design through a programme of exhibitions and mediation activities, highlighting innovation, experimental research, the emergence of new themes and horizons for research in design, architecture and graphic art. By presenting the diversity of these creative domains, the CID raises the public's awareness of a culture of design and architecture. It questions, studies and explains this culture through a dialogue with creators, researchers and also the public.

The CID aims to reflect our current society, by programming and producing three to five exhibitions each year with the exhibitions organized at the MACS On the one hand, they echo individual practices and research through monograph exhibitions dedicated to Belgian or international designers, and on the other, thematic exhibitions develop a narrative thread that invites us to dream up and invent utopias. An entire mediation programme is organised around the exhibitions to enable these discoveries to be shared with the public, specialist or otherwise, while attaching great importance to the adaptation of our visits to our visitors.

ABOUT THE ARTSHOP

The Artshop at Grand-Hornu is located at the entrance to the site, in the former lamp store.

The Grand-Hornu aims to offer a service for the sale of works and objects that fits seamlessly with the cultural offerings of the two associations (CID & MACS). To this end, the Artshop on more than 180 m² offers a choice of around a thousand works dedicated to contemporary art and design, complemented by a selection of magazines, artists' multiples and multimedia products. You will find a wide selection of artistic and historical publications related to the current exhibitions. Artshop : +32(0)65 613 907 / artshop@grand-hornu.be.
