Isabelle

DE BORCHGRAVE

It is with great sadness that we announce the death of the Belgian artist Isabelle de Borchgrave, taken far too soon by illness, surrounded by her loved ones.

Isabelle was not just an artist, she was a magician, a true alchemist of paper. Known affectionately as the Paper Lady, she transformed this humble material into works of rare elegance, from sculptural dresses to pleated creations that seemed to capture the breath of the wind.

Her joie de vivre shone through in every colour she chose with unerring instinct.

Her works, bathed in light, reflected the passion that never left her, the infinite quest for beauty and poetry.

Her many journeys around the world had a profound influence on her work. From Mexico to Egypt, each destination brought a new source of inspiration, which she translated into her work through vibrant colours and shapes.

Isabelle liked to share that her travels were gifts to her, windows onto rich and inspiring cultures that allowed her to constantly renew her artistic vision.

Just like her strength of character, her humour and that mischievous glint in her eye, which were an integral part of her creative personality.

Isabelle leaves behind a wonderful artistic legacy, a testament to her talent that will continue to inspire for years to come.
